If you miss a class, you are responsible for obtaining notes on the material we covered from another classmate. I encourage you to come to my office hours to discuss the material you missed, but not before you have gone over the material yourself through notes and the textbook.

Throughout the semester, we will do in-class exercises that will help prepare you for exams while also encouraging you to think on your feet, work in groups, and possibly present your work to the class. These exercises may not be formally graded, but I will count your level of involvement in these exercises along with your attendance and participation (e.g. answering questions posed to the class) at regular intervals throughout the course. I may also ask you to search for articles for discussion and answer related questions on articles which illustrate economic problems we have considered in class. You will be given the opportunity to make up for up to two lost participation points by turning in brief response papers to articles discussed in class at the end of the semester. I may also present exam questions drawn from our class discussions.

Campus policy regarding religious observances requires that faculty make every effort to deal reasonably and fairly with all students who, because of religious obligations, have conflicts with scheduled exams, assignments or required attendance. In this class, please see me at least two weeks prior to any conflicts due to religious observances. See full details at http://www.colorado.edu/policies/fac_relig.html
